I have revised the sites you listed in your email.

I have attached a spreadsheet with the changes. I have also made maps of the sites, showing ownership. The master title plat sites in Eureka Gulch are not perfect, but all sites with Rosetta maps are pretty good. The BLM land status was used sometimes, where its accuracy is close enough.

I also went back through the San Juan County Assessor's website and double checked the ownership of the claims that I listed and put the owners names in the spreadsheet.

When you respond back to Ryan Bennett, make sure to include the company name and not just his name (for liability purposes). Maybe make separate consent forms for Tactical Strategies and Ryan Bennett et. al..

Let me know if you have questions.

Note - my land status determinations are also inaccurate - this is just the nature of the beast. Without a true survey it would be really hard to determine precisely. The reason I helped out on this is because DRMS tried their best in these areas to accurately determine land status to obtain consent for mine safety closures.

Hi Kristin,

Thank you so much again for giving me a heads up about Ryan and his questions regarding his mine claims and our sampling locations. Here is the list of locations that we've identified for 2015 sampling and the claims that we think they are located on. Can you review this list and let me know if you have ownership identified for these locations already? And let me know if Ryan is correctly listed as the owner or who the owner is, if it's not Ryan?

In his email to me, he requested a map. So, once you review this list, I can break each location/claim up by company ownership and create a map for each of those entities.

Let me know if you have questions! Talk to you soon.
